How to organize a restaurant that also admits dogs

Provide a dedicated area for people who want to dine with their dogs, separated by small partitions from the area where people dine without animals.

It's important to place the dog-friendly area away from the buffet or at the end of the room.
Maintain enough space between tables so that dogs are not too close to each other.

It's always better to communicate all the rules for that occasion (in this case, for meals with their pets). One rule could be not to feed the dogs directly from the person's plate, as it may be unpleasant for other restaurant guests.
