Context

The Open call is launched by Interreg Italy-Croatia project BlueDiversity, in the context of WorkPackage 3 “Blue Education, Training and Culture”.

BlueDiversity is a territorial cooperation project funded by Interreg Italy-Croatia programme: the partnership is composed of 4 Italian and 3 Croatian partners, under the leadership of University of Salento: Sea and Karst (HR), Eduforma (IT), Institute of Oceanography and Fisheries (HR), Public Institution Dubrovnik-Neretva County Nature (HR), Blu Marine Service (IT), University of Padua (IT).

BlueDiversity aims at improving the understanding and the exploitation of the ecosystem services to balance the need for preservation of ecosystems and the economic necessities of the local population. BlueDiversity targets ecosystem services and their use, biodiversity, marine litter, Non-Indigenous Species (NIS) and the blue crab (Callinectes sapidus).

Moreover, BlueDiversity has the goal of involving young students and professionals in interregional training schemes to transmit the knowledge developed within the project and to promote a sustainable exploitation of the ecosystem services, leading to an effective preservation of biodiversity.

BlueDiversity WorkPackage 3 includes the design, development, creation and delivery of two educational paths specifically tailored to young students and professionals active in the maritime field, especially those having a close relationship with the ecosystem, namely ecosystem services Users.

Expected Outcome: 20 participants in the interregional training scheme “BlueDiversity training for professionals and SMEs”.

The educational path aims at generating awareness regarding BlueDiversity and European cooperation, transferring crucial knowledge and essential capabilities to ESU, such as biodiversity protection, ecosystem, ecosystem services, ecosystem services users, exploitation, alien species, blue crab and blue economy.

Duration of the training: 1 day.

Venue of the training:

- Italy: Venice Pilot Area hosted by University of Padova and Eduforma;
- Croatia: Dubrovnik hosted by the Institute of Public Institution Dubrovnik-Neretva County Nature.

Modality: frontal lectures and field activity.

BlueDiversity for Professionals and SMEs

BlueDiversity for SMEs and Professionals is a comprehensive introduction to the sustainable management of marine and coastal ecosystems within the framework of the Blue Economy. The course is divided into four interconnected units that guide learners from European policy foundations to hands-on ecosystem monitoring approaches. BlueDiversity for professionals training allows participants to gain knowledge, skills and capabilities regarding:

- European Union's policy framework: institutions and funding mechanisms that support cross-border cooperation;
- BlueDiversity: discover what the Blue Economy truly means — not just as a set of maritime industries, but as a sustainable model for using ocean resources responsibly;
- Environmental Aspects: explore how to balance environmental preservation and economic development;
- Monitoring Ecosystems: gain skills in data literacy and learn how to monitor marine ecosystems effectively. Understand the value of Local Ecological Knowledge (LEK) — insights from communities and users who play a vital role in maintaining healthy, resilient marine environments.
